

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

This invention is directed to a portable information apparatus, which includes a main display, a sub-display provided independently of the main display, 5 detection means for detecting information that the user must be informed of, and display control means for displaying a message indicating the information that the user must be informed of on the sub-display when the detection means detects this information.